

SRA Update

Issue 107 - September 2022

- General updates [\[#tab_b3cf1\]](#)
- Compliance updates [\[#tab_b3cf2\]](#)

Welcome to the latest issue of SRA Update. It's September, the start of autumn, and that always marks the beginning of a busy period for legal services. The legal year starts on 1 October, and our practising renewal period gets under way the same day. We will be contacting you next week as part of that process, and we include some information in this issue on what you should do to prepare. Also this month, we have produced new guidance on how we will deal with sexual misconduct - which we continue to get reports on - and we've updated our guidance on acting with integrity. And we are consulting on the details of refinements to our fining regime, so please share your views.

Guidance on dealing with sexual misconduct cases

[\[https://www.sra.org.uk/sra/news/press/2022-press-releases/sexual-misconduct-guidance/\]](https://www.sra.org.uk/sra/news/press/2022-press-releases/sexual-misconduct-guidance/)

We continue to get reports of potential sexual misconduct in the firms we regulate. This is an issue we take very seriously. Read our new guidance to understand our approach in this area, our expectations on firms and individuals, the types of behaviours which are unacceptable, and when such issues might become regulatory matters.

Acting with integrity – guidance updated

[\[https://www.sra.org.uk/solicitors/guidance/acting-with-integrity/\]](https://www.sra.org.uk/solicitors/guidance/acting-with-integrity/)

Many of the issues raised in sexual misconduct cases relate to a lack of integrity. For this and other areas, we have therefore updated that guidance too, including clarification around the latest case law and how that informs our approach.

Keeping of the Roll returns next year

[<https://www.sra.org.uk/sra/news/press/2022-press-releases/annual-exercise-solicitors-practising-certificates/>]

Following changes in laws regarding how personal data is handled, we are reintroducing a requirement for those of you without practising certificates to complete an annual application to remain on the Roll of Solicitors. Ahead of this it is important that all currently non-practising solicitors check that their contact details within mySRA are up to date.

Welcome to the Compliance News section of the latest issue of SRA Update. We have produced guidance on how we will approach disciplinary action against any solicitor that is convicted of a crime while involved action on matters of principle or social conscience, such as demonstrations or protests. We have also updated our guidance on professional obligations in light of the current industrial action being taken by the Criminal Bar Association. And we are to undertake more work on compliance with our transparency rules – it's important that you do so, not least as you might be missing out on potential new clients otherwise.

Convictions for principled action

[\[https://www.sra.org.uk/solicitors/guidance/convictions-arising-social-conscience/\]](https://www.sra.org.uk/solicitors/guidance/convictions-arising-social-conscience/)

Solicitors like everyone else have causes close to their hearts, and there have been occasions when demonstrations they are involved with have escalated, leading to police action. Read our new guidance on our approach to potential disciplinary action for those that have received criminal convictions in such situations.
